

2010 Big Lake Season

The Big Lake Season is underway. Sorry for the lack of reports. I will be fishing this weekend and will try to start posting regular reports. Our June steelhead fishery never really setup out deep this year. Salmon fishing was hit and miss earlier but has been improving steadily. Thanks to all who have booked for this season! I always enjoy hearing from my customers and look forward to getting out on the lake with you. I do have a number of dates still open so it is not too late to set something up for remainder of July or August. I am inserting a picture from one of the groups who have been fishing with me for several years now. They are booked again this year and I am hoping the weather cooperates this time.
