

February 22nd Update

Good News. I heard back from the guys in Canada and we are working on getting our trip booked (see below). I am looking forward to getting back up to Esnagi.

Last year's knee injury put the kibosh on snowmobiling so I have been trying to make up for that by getting out as much as possible this year. I took the day off yesterday and snowmobiled to White Cloud with a friend. I have a feeling that might be the last ride of the year as the snow is really disappearing. We rode 210 miles yesterday and while conditions were good in the morning, they had really deteriorated by the time we got back in the evening.

Our recent heat wave here in Manistee has me thinking about getting out on Lake Michigan. Only 28 days until Spring!