

November 23, 2007 Update

It is looking like winter here in Manistee. We have about an inch of snow on the ground and it is coming down pretty good right now. Deer season has been a bust so far. We have a bear hanging out in the swamp we hunt and I think the deer are avoiding the area. I did get a good look at the bear last week. He passed by within 10 yards of the ground blind I was setting in. He or she looked to be a pretty good sized healthy bear. I have been catching a few fish on the Little Manistee River but other than that don't have much to report. I am heading to Ohio with a friend later today. We are going to give the Ohio deer season opener a shot. I don't have real high expectations but look forward to getting out of town for a couple days.
